ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We are extremely grateful to Mr. E. Lee Shepard, Senior Archivist, Division of Manuscripts and his staff at The Virginia Historical Society in Richmond, Virginia for their help and cooperation in copying the original fragile document, which is maintained and housed at The Historical Society.

We would like to thank Mr. William D. Harris, Clerk of Circuit Court of Fauquier County for his permission to publish this Fauquier County Record.

Thanks to Frederick W. Frank of Morgantown, West Virginia who recognized the value of this original document and donated it to The Virginia Historical Society in 1965, Heretofore, its whereabouts unknown.

Special thanks to Mr. John K. Gott, Fauquier County Historian for his encouragement, support and his donation of some of the original Handwritten Registration of Freed Blacks (copies inside), from his private collection.

DEDICATED TO:

Our Freed Black Forefathers and Mothers listed herein - They suffered the indignities of ritualistic registration to prove their status of freedom, their bodies were examined, prodded and poked for distinguishing, cuts, marks, moles, deformities, anything that would identify them in order to be given a certificate of freedom allowing them to work, and travel to and from work without being detained or picked up as runaway slaves.

We also dedicate this book to the black brothers and sisters of these freed blacks who were still enslaved.

Their spirit, courage, determination of surviving in the most adverse of conditions, should inspire hope and vision for us all.

PREFACE

All counties in the Commonwealth of Virginia were required by the law of 1793 to register all Freed Negroes. This law covered the period through 1865. Many Counties kept separate registers, however, many registers were lost during the Civil War.

While doing research in July 1991 Karen White, co-founder of the Afro-American Historical Assocication of Fauquier County, was made aware that the Register for Free Negroes was housed at the Virginia Historical Society in Richmond.

When visiting the Historical Society in January 1992 we were awestruck and we reverently leafed through the document marveling at names, dates, and descriptions of the Freed Negroes of Fauquier County. To our amazement we found relatives in this register.

We view this book with mixed emotions, sorry that the Freed Negroes had to register, yet glad that detailed descriptions are given. We have thus been enabled to almost visualize exactly how each person looked, their age at time of registering, height, stature, color, and descriptions denoting uniqueness to that person.

We hope this book will inspire many to research their family histories.

INTRODUCTION

In the early years of slavery there were relatively few free Negroes. 'Slavery' had not yet become an established social institution. In many southern states, Negroes were able to vote and hold public office. Gradually, however, as the free Negro class increased, they began to be regarded with suspicion and fear. The few social distinctions between the races and the relatively 'equal' rights were short lived, and by 1763, the free Negro began to suffer growing repression, socially, politically, and economically.

In 1691, Virginia created the first restrictions on manumissions. No one could free a slave unless he paid for transporting the free Negro beyond the colony. By 1723, the law became even more stringent -"No slaves shall be set free upon any pretense whatsoever, except for some meritorious services to be adjudged and allowed by the governor and council". Not until 1782, and the increased sentiment for Negroes, who proved their loyalty in the Revolutionary War, did the laws change and legitimize private manumissions.

Before 1782, there were perhaps less than 3,000 freed Negroes in Virginia. By 1790 the free Negro population had increased to 12,866 and to 20,124 by 1800. In 1806, Virginia forced the migration of free Negroes into the state from other regions and provided a law stating "every Negro free after 1806 must leave the state within 12 months unless granted special permission to remain.

In 1793 Virginia passed a law stating "Free Negroes and Mulattoes shall be registered and numbered in a book to be kept by the town clerk, which shall specify age, name, color, status, and by whom and in what court emancipate. Annually, the Negro shall be delivered a copy for twenty five cents. A penalty is fixed for employing a Negro without a certificate, the Negro may be committed to jail. Every free Negro shall once in every three years obtain a new certificate."

Some County Clerks listed the freed Negroes in the County Order Book, however, most counties kept separate registers. Many Registers were lost during the Civil War. Luckily, the Virginia Historical Society was able to obtain the original Register for Fauquier County.

By 1840, there were roughly 688 free Negroes living in Fauquier County. Though they constituted a relatively small segment of the total population, the social importance can be seen from the number of laws restricting free Negroes in Virginia. Fauquier county had a large number of free blacks and a high rate of growth that continued from 1790 to 1860. Table-1 illustrates this expansion of the free Negro population in Fauquier County.

The Fauquier County Free Negro Register contained the names of 845 freed Negroes. The Register provides for many Fauquier County African-Americans, the names, physical description, age, stature, color, and 'how freed' of ancestor during this period of United States History. Frequently, the date of registration, date of manumission, family relations, and previous residence, were listed. Hopefully, it will strengthen the link between many African-American Genealogist in Fauquier looking for lost relatives, as well as provide a brief look at Fauquier County history during this period.
